A very slow funding news week.....In this issue...

Camelot Foundation - latest

Are Camelot considering A U-turn in their decision to stop funding their own foundation? Apparently the Camelot Board are considering whether to continue support for the Camelot Foundation.

Camelot is the National Lottery Operator and when they started up they pledged their own support for good causes through the Camelot Foundation. The foundation concentrates its support on specific youth issues.

The foundation had expected £2m of funding a year until 2009, but did not receive the first of the two £1m instalments it was expecting which would fund its grants in 2008. There was speculation that the Camelot Foundation would have to restrict their planned funding activities, but they denied this in an announcement on their website.
